Q2 2022

When the markets were at their worst, the Stringer Growth Fund provided a meaningful advantage.

No one could have predicted a global pandemic of such epic proportions at the start of 2020. Investors soon found themselves confronted with extreme levels of uncertainty and some difficult decisions to make.

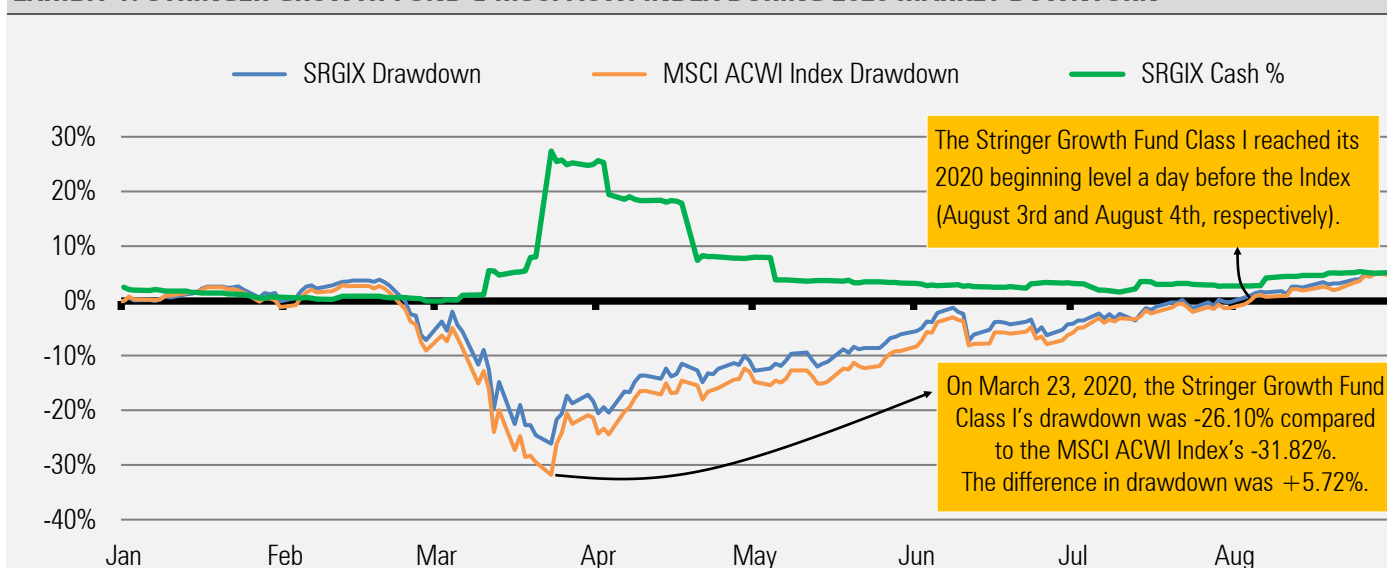

In times like that, it is easy to make mistakes if you don't have a plan in case of an emergency. In the heat of the moment, instinct can take over and lead to emotional investment decisions of trying to time getting out and getting back in.

The Stringer Growth Fund has a plan in case of emergency that was established long before the crisis. Our goal is to follow an active risk management process that can potentially deliver meaningful results when the markets are at their worst.

EXHIBIT DETAILS:

- » Our cash raise methodology prompted us to increase cash using both our experience managing tactical investments as well as our Cash Indicator, which triggered in March.
- » During the March 2020 market downturn, the Stringer Growth Fund fell less than the MSCI ACWI Index during this volatile period.
- » As the market recovered, our process prompted us to reinvest cash and the Stringer Growth Fund Class I achieved breakeven reaching its 2020 beginning level a day before the Index (August 3rd and August 4th, respectively).

OUR THREE LAYERS OF RISK MANAGEMENT

1 We manage risk within our strategic, long-term allocations based on diversification across equity, fixed income, and alternative assets and a focus on more attractive relative values.

2 We manage risk tactically over the short-term by investing across a broad array of themes and asset classes including cash. We can either invest opportunistically or defensively depending on the environment.

3 Finally, our Cash Indicator methodology acts as a plan in case of an emergency. This is analogous to the multiple safety systems in a modern automobile, which includes an airbag. Importantly, each of these systems work together to potentially help smooth the ride.

Investing in the Fund carries certain risks. The value of the Fund may decrease in response to the activities and financial prospects of an individual security in the Fund's portfolio. The Fund is non-diversified and may invest a greater percentage of its assets in a particular issue and may own fewer securities than other mutual funds. The Fund may be subject to substantial short-term changes. These factors may affect the value of your investment. The Sub-Advisor has no prior experience advising a mutual fund. Investors will indirectly bear fees and expenses charged by the underlying funds in which the Fund may invest in addition to the Fund's direct fees and expenses and, as a result, your cost of investing in the Fund will generally be higher than the cost of investing directly in the underlying fund shares. Investments in ETFs bear the risk that the market price of the ETF's shares may trade at a discount to their net asset value or that an active trading market for an ETF's shares may not develop or be maintained. Additionally, ETFs or other pooled investment vehicles that invest in commodities, such as raw materials or agricultural products are tied to future market values and future income and are vulnerable to adverse movements in prices and exchange rates. The price of commodities may be affected by geopolitical changes and relations. Investments in foreign markets, particularly emerging markets, can be more volatile than the U.S. market due to increased risks of adverse issuer, political, regulatory, or economic developments.

Index Definitions: The MSCI ACWI (Net) Index is a free float-adjusted market capitalization weighted index that is designed to measure the equity market performance of developed and emerging markets.
